INVESTMENT STRATEGY

The Tweedy, Browne Global High Dividend Value Fund seeks capital appreciation by investing primarily in equity securities domiciled throughout the world with above-average dividend yields selling at reasonable valuations (i.e., some level of discount from estimated intrinsic value, defined as book value, earnings value or more often private market value) which includes, generally, companies with growing dividends and companies with above average dividends where expectations have been low but are expected to improve. The Sub-Fund is actively managed without reference to any benchmark.

RISK INDICATOR DEFINITION

In addition to risk captured by the indicator, the overall Sub-Fund value may be considerably affected by: market risk, liquidity risk, currency risk, derivatives risk, counterparty risk and operational risk.

COMMITMENT OF THE ADVISER

As of 30 June 2026, the current Managing Directors and employees of Tweedy, Browne and their immediate family members, together with one of Tweedy, Browne's retired principals, had more than USD 1.6 billion in value-oriented portfolios, including USD 2.0 million in Global High Dividend Value Fund.

1 The THE MSCI WORLD INDEX is a benchmark created and calculated by Tweedy, Browne and represents the MSCI World Index (Hedged to EUR) from inception through 30 November 2022; and the MSCI World Index (in EUR) for periods thereafter. The change in benchmark composition represents the change in the Sub-Fund's hedging policy in November 2022. The MSCI World Index is an unmanaged, free float-adjusted market capitalization weighted index that is designed to measure the equity market performance of developed markets. The MSCI World Index (in EUR) reflects the return of the MSCI World Index for a euro investor. The MSCI World Index (Hedged to EUR) consists of the results of the MSCI World Index with its non-EUR exposure 100% hedged back into EUR, and accounts for interest rate differentials in forward currency exchange rates.

Effective 16 November 2022, the Sub-Fund generally does not hedge its perceived foreign currency risk. The value of the Sub-Fund's shares and the return they generate can go down as well as up. They are affected by market volatility and by fluctuations in exchange rates. Upon redemption of shares in the Sub-Fund, investors may not receive the full amount invested. Past performance does not predict future returns. The performance data does not take account of any commissions and costs incurred on the issue and redemption of shares. Current tax levels and reliefs may change. Depending on individual circumstances, this may affect investment returns. The breakdown into sectors and the individual investment items as well as indicated benchmarks are liable to change at any time in line with the investment policy. There are substantial risks involved in an investment in the Sub-Fund including market risk, liquidating risk, currency risk, and operational risk. For full information on the risks, please refer to the "Certain Risks Factors" section in the prospectus.

COMMENTARY & MARKET OUTLOOK (All facts & figures are as of 30/06/2026, unless otherwise noted)

Despite ongoing geopolitical tensions and a rather fragile cease fire in the Iran/US conflict, the second quarter saw a resumption of the AI inspired advance in US technology stocks. Oil transport began moving again in fits and starts in the Strait of Hormuz which helped to alleviate concerns somewhat about the potential for spiking oil prices and their derivative impact on inflation and interest rates. Global equity prices responded in a relief rally that continued through quarter-end.

While US based AI-related companies drove market returns during the quarter, we were heartened to see the advance broadened well beyond the “Magnificent Seven” to include smaller capitalization companies. Non-US equities also moved up, but trailed their US counterparts.

Against this increasingly “risk on” backdrop, the Tweedy, Browne Global High Dividend Yield Value Fund (EUR) returned 10.94% for the quarter and 14.48% YTD, compared to 14.64% and 12.68%, respectively, for its benchmark, the MSCI World Index in EUR.

While we are pleased with the financial results of the Sub-Fund and global equity markets in the first half of this year, we would be remiss if we did not share our increasing concern about rapidly rising equity valuations in the face of a stubbornly persistent inflation and rising interest rates. The over-arching enthusiasm about all things AI related, and the increasing dominance of a small group of mega-cap technology companies have unleashed “animal spirits” which cannot help but conjure up memories of the late 1990s, lest we forget the late Barton Biggs’ admonition in March of 2000 that “even monkeys fall from trees.”

The Sub-Fund's strongest individual contributors during the quarter included DHL Group, Computacenter, Aalberts, Johnson Service Group, Bunzl, and LG Corp. Additional positive contributions came from Bank of America, Nestlé, United Overseas Bank, Roche Holding, ADEKA, Sodexo, Heineken Holding, Novartis, and Johnson & Johnson. Among individual holdings, the largest detractors were Kemira, TotalEnergies, BAE Systems, Rubis, Capgemini, Uni-President China Holdings, Jardine Matheson, Haitian International, and Zoetis.

From a sector perspective, Industrials was the largest contributor to absolute return, supported by strong performance from DHL Group, Aalberts, Johnson Service Group, Bunzl, and Computacenter. Financials also contributed meaningfully, led by United Overseas Bank, Bank of America, and several other bank holdings. Positive contributions were also generated by Information Technology, Consumer Staples, and Health Care, reflecting gains in Computacenter, Heineken Holding, Nestlé, Roche Holding, Novartis, and Johnson & Johnson. The principal sector detractors were Energy, reflecting weakness in TotalEnergies; Utilities, where Rubis detracted; and Materials, where Kemira more than offset gains from ADEKA.

Geographically, the largest positive contributions came from holdings based in Britain, the Netherlands, Germany, Switzerland, and the United States, with additional support from Singapore and South Korea. The largest country-level detractors were France, Finland, and China.

Currency movements were modestly favorable during the quarter. Strength in the British pound, U.S. dollar, Singapore dollar, and Mexican peso against the euro more than offset weakness in the Japanese yen, South Korean won, Canadian dollar, Swedish krona, and Norwegian krone. The Sub-Fund's relatively large exposures to the euro, British pound, and U.S. dollar moderated the overall impact of exchange rate movements.

During the quarter, the Sub-Fund established new positions in Auto Trader Group, Capgemini, Winpak, and Zoetis, while adding modestly to Arkema and Whitbread at prices that we believed offered attractive discounts to our estimates of intrinsic value.

The Sub-Fund exited its position in Inaba Denki Sangyo and reduced holdings in Computacenter, Kuraray, LG Corp, and Teleperformance as their prospective returns became less compelling or portfolio weights were adjusted.

While we are delighted with the progress equity markets and our Sub-Fund continues to make, and heartened by the broadening of the rally, in our view there are also reasons for caution. Chief among them: key market indicators sit at or near all-time peak multiples (an approximate 41x Shiller CAPE and a 219% “Buffett Indicator”); S&P 500 margins and earnings appear to be approaching a cyclical peak even as hyperscalers commit to enormous AI capital spending of uncertain economic return; and we see growing signs of a casino mentality, with US margin debt reaching a record $1.4 trillion in May 2026.

We are not, however, suggesting investors abandon sensibly valued publicly traded equities. Today's market resembles the period before the 2000 technology bubble: a smaller group of highly valued US technology companies commands elevated valuations while much of the broader market, particularly outside the US, continues to trade at more reasonable levels. History may not repeat, but it often rhymes.

Our Sub-Fund remains well positioned by issue, country, sector and industry, with growing exposure to smaller and mid-cap companies that offer far more attractive valuations than the US technology giants. Insider buying and corporate buybacks continue to provide valuable signals of undervaluation and the prospect of stronger relative returns. Should our worries prove out and global equity markets get a comeuppance, we believe our Sub-Fund should hold up better and may gain ground on their benchmarks. If, on the other hand, animal spirits continue to support equity prices, we will likely still participate, even if we do not outperform.

Transaction costs are a necessary cost in administering the Sub-Fund and impacts Sub-Fund returns. It should not be considered in isolation as returns may be impacted by many other factors over time including market returns, the type of Sub-Fund, investment decisions of the investment manager and the TER.
